History of The Bishopbriggs Golf Club

In 1906 a group of golf enthusiasts leased 53 hectares of land in the Kenmure area of Bishopbriggs, lying within the boundaries of the original 'Kenmure Estate'. The group commissioned renowned golf course architect James Braid to design a number of the holes, and the course was opened in 1907 with 9-holes, and extended to 18-holes in 1911.

In case the golf course was not a success, the Clubhouse was built in the style of a family home, so that they could then recoup their investment by selling the 'house'. Fortunately by the 1920's and 30's, the club was very successful and popular with local residents.

Until 1930, sheep grazed the course and the greens were cut by hand, with the help of horse-drawn cutters used to keep the rough in check.

The Members purchased the lease in 1991, and significant investment has since been made to enhance many areas of the golf course and its surroundings. A new Golf Academy was established with nine mini holes, six driving bays, and two practice greens.

The modern course measures 6,262 yards of parkland, with tree-lined fairways and excellent greens, along with views of the Campsie Fells which are second-to-none.

Membership Benefits

Our members enjoy unlimited access to our course and two practice areas, so you can play whenever the mood takes you.

Our course is a traditional parkland style, beautifully landscaped and maintained. Our comfortable lounge, bars, and dining room are perfect for a post-round refreshment with family and friends.

There are thriving Mens, Ladies, Seniors and Juniors sections and plenty of opportunities for mixed golf. Our competitions and roll-up events allow new members to quickly find friends and playing companions.

There are team matches, knock-out events, and a regular programme of singles, foursomes and fourball competitions in all categories throughout the year.

Our PGA Professional helps to encourage beginners to take up golf and join the club. And coaching and lessons packages are available to beginner and experienced golfers alike.

We have reciprocal arrangements offering discount green fees at 19 other local courses.

The club has an active social calendar with a variety of functions organised throughout the year. And non-golfers can enjoy those aspects of the club with our Social Membership categories.
